EXPERT SPEAKERS

We kick things off with our keynote speaker, Matthew Moore who will entertain and inspire us about his own Parkinson's journey with humor and inspiration.

Additionally, Dr. David Standaert, Chairman of UAB's Department of Neurology will provide his annual Udall Center Update from the University of Alabama at Birmingham Movement Disorders Clinic on the latest research, treatments, and therapies available in Birmingham. We will close the day with our expert panel moderated by PAA Emeritus Director, Ken Cater to answer your questions.

The PAA has some very exciting announcements and will demonstrate the availability and launch of the Parkinson's Disease Resource Center and Care Navigation Programs as well.

COMPLIMENTARY BREAKFAST AND LUNCH

NEW THIS YEAR! BREAKOUT SESSIONS

In an effort to provide even more content tailored to your needs, we are offering three tracks, each with two sessions for the newly diagnosed, those who want to learn how to manage PD well, and care partners.

Newly Diagnosed Track: Preparing for the PD Journey

Laura Lieb talks about how to make the most of our limited time with our medical specialists and the importance of getting and keeping organized for unexpected hospitalizations and illness to prevent adverse events.

Living Well with PD Track:

Dr. Ben McCullough provides updates on treatment options and paths for consideration when it comes to managing Parkinson's Symptoms. You will also learn the importance and value that support and movement groups bring through a panel of those living well with PD and Movement Group demonstrations.

Care Partner Track:

Stacey Rowland starts things off moderating a panel of those living with PD who want care partners to understand what it is like walking in their shoes. She will conclude with the importance of Care Partner self-care with many valuable tips to help along the journey.
